

ABSTRACT

Asean Obstacle on Eradicating Drugs Cartel in South East Asia on 2008-2014

The dynamics of international security politics in the era of globalization are not only dominated by high politic issues, but also issues directly related to the people who deal with human security. One of them is the circulation of narcotics and drugs.

ASEAN is one of the organizations that in the period 2008-2014 confronted the issue of drug cartels. In addressing this issue ASEAN seeks to pursue its work by involving stakeholders to synergize and build cooperation to solve the drug cartel problem in Southeast Asia.

In fact, ASEAN's efforts in dealing with drug cartel issues have not been able to run effectively fundamentally. This is due to the weakness of the cooperation regime, as well as the clash with the national interest in each country. The description of ASEAN's obstacles in combating the narcotics cartel in Southeast Asia in the period 2008-2014 will be described in the following study.
