ABSTRAK

Greece, as one of the member of European Union and Eurozone face so much challenge in economic sector. Start from the first time Greece has got chance to join the Euro zone or a monetary union that adopt Euro as their common currency by falsifying data about its public finances, Greece start to be trapped in economic problem. And when the Global Financial Crisis in 2007-2008 came, Greece can't force is economic to hang on while the global crisis held. The European Union, European Central Bank and the IMF who known as "The Troika" has help Greece to stand up and repair the economy situation. Greece can get help or bailout by obey the condition from the creditor who want Greece to reform economic and put into effect a financial dicipline to keep Greece from teetering on the brink. But, in 2015 for the first time in the history Greece refuse help from European Union.

This research aims to answer such questions by using the Rational Actor and Bureaucracy Politic theory from Graham T. Allison complete by qualitative method. This research conclude that Greece rejecting the European Union's help, but that action is one of Greece's strategy to make a better deal or change the previous requirement.
