

ABSTRACT

NGO is not part of government but is an element of a civil society that bridges between communities and the government to take real action and is an independent organization that is social. As we know, NGO is also said to be a manifestation of interest for civil society institutions. Civil society itself is defined as an association of regional and independent actions of state and market, where the people can manage to achieve the goals that are important to them either individually or in groups. Civil society also refers to "third sector" or the sector "non-profit", often used to describe aspects of the community that goes beyond the public and private sectors. In this case, the NGO that take action is Yayasan Cinta Anak Bangsa.

This thesis will be explain about the role of Yayasan Cinta Anak Bangsa is the NGO that succeed the program of UN. To succeed the program from the UN, not only the government that support the program and make a project for their countries but also the supporter that support the UN SDGs. NGO is one of the actor that support the UN SDGs beside the government.

The research can help the society to understand the UN SDGs and there is a NGO that support the UN SDGS itself to succeed it.
