

ABSTRACT

Egypt is a country that geopolitically strategic. It is a huge transcontinental country that is connecting the Africa, Europe, and Asia. This country also play a major role in Silk Road Trading. The establishment of the Suez Canal in Egypt at 19 Century has changed the world trading route. In a day, Suez Canal can passes over 2.5 million tons of freight which is contribute eight percent for cargo shipping over the world.

Nevertheless, Egypt as a huge country carry a huge burden. After the revolution, al-Sisi has to face the critical condition of Egypt's economic which needs a quite effort to recover.

At the other side, People of Republic China under Xi Jinping administration start to widen its scope of interest. He has vision named "One Belt One Road" which is related to the Silk Road route, and he is about to enhancing bilateral relations with Egypt in many aspects, especially in New Suez Canal Development. The current economic condition in Egypt which is remained in crisis might be answered by receiving the foreign investment.

The paper would like to discuss about the decision of al-Sisi establishing a strategic partnership and encouraging P.R.C's foreign investment for New Suez Canal.

Keyword: Egypt-P.R.C. relations, New Suez Canal, Decision making, foreign investment