

ABSTRACT

This thesis describes the settlement of refugee problems that occurred in Europe. Refugee crisis in Europe began to increase since 2011 and peak occurred in 2015. The European Union has made several related policies in handling refugees occurred in Europe but the policy cannot walk with the maximum. The waves of refugees that are increasingly not able to stem the European Union as the parent organization in Europe should create a policy to stem the flow of refugees coming into Europe. The European Union needs to cooperate with other countries outside the European Union. Finally the European Union selected in cooperation with Turkey because according to EU Turkey has a strategic position. The strategic position of Turkey's first Turkey has a geographical location as one of the gates to Europe. The second Turkey have a policy about the handling of the refugees who prefer the refugees from Europe.
