

Abstract

The most important aim of this skripsi writing was to explain how united nation's role in supervising human security which happened in Egypt after Egypt's demonstration and revolution in 2011. To explain the main topic, this study used peace keeping and peace building concept.

In this study, the researcher used descriptive method, data gathering technique, and all of the data used were taken from book, journal, and online mass-media. Subsequently, the data was arranged and analysed in accordance to the topic which was studied.

Soon after the rebellion to dethrone Hosni Mubarak from presidential chair, Egypt experienced many alterations. After the revolution, Egypt was like a country without a law. People were no longer trust the government, and the government appeared to be siding with certain groups. The problems rising up in Egypt were about majority and minority issue. The escalation of the revolution enthusiasm had vanished because of disparities between groups. One of the examples of post revolution is that Egypt was coiled in poverty, which as a result, the difference between the groups of haves and-nois emerged. Another problem rising up from global issue was human security. Its impact influenced the government, economy, national development, and Egyptians' human right. The human security issue arose because there had been incertitude concerning oneself and human life, such as poverty, social and economy imbalance, unfulfilled basic need, violation to human right, environment pollution and natural disaster. The emergence of those issues attracted United Nation organizations' interest which role is as a forum to assemble cooperation and prevents or alleviates conflict. United nation is a political organization which its activity involving political issues in international relation. United nation's international organizations are not only handling about political issue, but also issue about reconcilment and security conflict.

Key words: human security, United Nation, post-revolution conflict, peace keeping and peace building.