

CHAPTER IV

CLOSING

A. Conclusion

Driving License Simulator Case involving Corruption Eradication Commission (KPK) and Police of Republic of Indonesia is one of mega-corruption cases in Indonesia that makes a lot of state losses for economy and society. The commission also a part of state structure especially in state auxiliary institution, even they got less political support from other institution. Since the corruption become extraordinary case and a lot of state losses, so this commission is really needed to eradicate corruption in Indonesia. This KPK and Police conflict is a prolonged conflict since KPK established and provides an advantage for corruptors to ruin the programs of eradicating corruption.

Conflict tends to be covered and even abandoned. Of these conflicts found the state losses ranged from 121 billion, with another impact is the formation of unequal public opinion. Public opinion that happens is when people use hashtag (#) saveKPK instead of saving both institutions which makes the image of the police become increasingly unfavorable. Since the KPK need the public sympathy from civil society, they obtain their legitimacy from it. Indonesia society tends to have a mindset that "reasonable fair-only" If hearing corruption cases from the media. An attitude which is considered habit and long will be widespread. Not the corruption that become culture but our mindset that cultivate corruption. Uncertainty until when this nation needed the KPK. We need a KPK and also the nation. At least for a period not specified. Revamping the bureaucratic reform against State agencies that are deemed vital, as the Attorney General's Office and the national police were also urgently needed, given the State of the two institutions hold a great responsibility to the community. And to this days, between KPK and Police can be called as a conflict with concurrent powers, where the institutions do work on the same object by enforcing criminal law in the field of corruption.

From the author's analysis, the authority conflicts between the KPK and the police, included into the Destructive and Horizontal conflict. According to the type of organizational case, this conflict becomes Conflict between state institutions. Furthermore, it can be concluded that this conflict is a Political conflict between national units. There are some motives that harming the political stability. The public believes that any conflict or issue between the KPK and the Police must have other beneficiaries, both economically and politically. Chaotic KPK and Police are considered to have a very strong power motive. At the time eager to eradicate corruption, the KPK suddenly hampered by the systematic “criminalization”. The KPK leadership has reportedly been involved in a number of legal issues. This is describes how the ruling party was judged not to receive the spirit of the KPK who diligently eradicate corruption in the elite level.

Furthermore, the causes of conflict between KPK and the police are lack of communication and coordination because of the unclearly of the law that bonding them, the overlapping authority in their structures that makes bad system of checks and balances, and other personal variables, such as organizational interest, the invaluable habit even other political motives in the context of national units.

B. Recommendations

Corruption will obviously harm the people but not only the people, will it eventually bring down the state itself and also the morale of the people. Therefore, it needs strict law enforcement and also a truly clean institution of corruption. Though we all must realize that the controversy of the polemic, which leads to the turbulences of the national political atmosphere. As a result of this prolonged KPK and Police chaos, the most benefited from this conflict are the corruptors and or the opportunists, who are ready to pounce from behind. Here are the resolution efforts for the conflict of KPK and Police to be considered before the conflict with similar things in the future.

1. Conflict resolution of KPK and Police does not by just the legal term but also behaviorally, so the abandonment of etiquette and the ethics of inter-agency relations become compatible.
2. Revision of the Law which regulates authority in the case of criminal acts of corruption (KPK Laws).

3. Increasing accountability and transparency in these institutions, so they will not to abuse the authority arbitrarily as law enforcement agencies.

We need KPK and also this nation, at least for an indefinite period of time. The reform of the bureaucratic reformation of the vital state institutions such as the Attorney General's Office and the National Police is also indispensable as both state institutions hold a great responsibility to the community. Strengthening mental steel "anti-stealing" to the retainer of state and build morals from an early age to the successor of the country through the school curriculum. The role of parents in guiding their children greatly influences their mindset to determine mental "steal" mentality and the mindset to build a country without perform personal interest rather than public become more preferred.
