

CHAPTER IV

CONCLUSIONS AND SUGGESTION

A. Conclusion

The collaboration that occurs in the development of tourism potentials in Candirejo Village, Klaten Regency, which is carried out by the village government, the private sector, the Java Reconstruction Fund, and the Community is not optimally implemented. Each stakeholder in addition to carrying out collaboration activities also carries out the role of their respective activities in order to succeed in the development of potential tourism programs. So far the collaboration that occurred is still semiformal in the sense that there is no written agreement. In practice, collaboration is still running in achieving the same mission but less than optimal.

Based on the indicators set by Ansell and Gash, researcher conclude that the collaboration in Candirejo Village has only running for around 45% and unsuccessful. This is because there are obstacles hinder the program implementation. Collaboration begins with initial conditions, facilitative leadership, institutional design, and collaborative processes. From these components, the obstacles that occur in the process of collaboration in the village of Candirejo are the lack of funding in program funding, human resources, lack of training, lack of written rules for collaborative implementation, and lack of coordination.

Based on data collected from collaboration and analysis activities, collaboration can be concluded that in fact, every stakeholder has tried to commit and work in carrying out his role in collaboration. However, it can be concluded that collaboration, until now, remains not optimal with various shortcomings.

B. Suggestion

Based on research conducted by researchers in Candirejo Village, Klaten Regency regarding the collaboration of stakeholders in developing tourism potentials, the researchers want to provide suggestions as follows:

1. It is recommended that collaboration should be well coordinated, in order to synergize perceptions among stakeholders, primarily related to the development of tourism potential so that it can be realized that the development of tourism potential will provide sufficient benefits to the village if it is well realized. This can be done by regular training and socialization so that the awareness of each stakeholder or related parties to support each other and believe in the effort done can be well-formed.
2. To overcome financial problems, the stakeholders may establish cooperation with other parties (certain banks or private companies). The program for developing the potential of tourism does require substantial funding. Because after all, financial resources are the primary source of the success of this program besides the human resources element.
