

ABSTRACT

This undergraduate thesis is going to discuss China's response facing US initiation in trying dominance Asia Pacific region with the Trans-Pacific Partnership. These issues have to be lifted to the surface, due to the relatively high capacity of the United States attempted to launch any breakthrough in the competitive power in the Asia Pacific region. Therefore, that will place China under the spotlight of attention of the international community, China has been incredibly strong considering blowing back off all threats, especially the United States who is trying dominate the Asia-Pacific region. Finally, the influence of the Chinese government in shaping attitudes and strategies in the competition of dominating of the Asia-Pacific region to compete with US became an interesting thing.