

ABSTRACT

This study aims to analyze the influence of gross regional domestic product, government expenditure, and domestic capital investment to the local original revenue in special region of Yogyakarta. This research uses secondary data from 2005 until 2014 which obtained from the Central Bureau of statistic. Analysis tool used in this study is the pooled regression. The results showed (1) the gross regional domestic product variables affect positively and significantly to the local original revenue in the special region of Yogyakarta. (2) the government expenditure variables affect positively and significantly to the local original revenue in the special region of Yogyakarta. (3) the domestic capital investment variables affect positively and significantly to the local original revenue in the special region of Yogyakarta.

Keyword: Local Original Revenue, Gross Regional Domestic Product, Government Expenditure, Domestic Capital Investment